Introduction

The purpose of this Information Guide is to provide you with answers to frequently asked questions that may arise when you are contemplating retirement. As pension rules change from time to time, visit www.pensionsbc.ca, for the most up to date/current information.

Some of the more common questions centre around: What do I need to know? What should I be doing and when? How do I start the retirement process? What steps are involved in the retirement process?

More detailed information about pensions and retirement including pension calculators which allow you to simulate various retirement scenarios on an individual basis, are available by accessing the Pension Corporation's public website:

www.pensionsbc.ca

You can also contact the Pension Corporation directly by using the following telephone numbers or by forwarding a written inquiry to the address below:

College Pension Plan: toll free in Canada and the U.S. 1-888-440-0111
Municipal Pension Plan: toll free in Canada and the U.S. 1-800-668-6335

If you have decided on an actual retirement date, you should contact your PTS Contact first then BCIT's Payroll Department. This is to ensure that appropriate notification and processing occurs to avoid unnecessary delays in processing your pension. Payroll will direct you to Human Resources and a representative will contact you to address your questions and help you through the process.

Retiring from BCIT

1. When can I retire?

You can retire as early as age fifty-five (55) and as late as November 30th of the calendar year in which you turn 71 (as outlined in section 8502(e) of the Income Tax Regulations under the Income Tax Act (Canada). Depending on your age and years of service at retirement, you will receive either an unreduced or a reduced pension. For full details on pensions and how they are calculated, see the “FAQ” section under each plan of the Pension Corporation website www.pensionsbc.ca or contact an HR Advisor for an estimate.

2. What pension plan am I in?

Generally, Part-Time Studies Instructors contribute to the College Pension Plan. However, some BCIT employees who were hired prior to 1986 were contributing to the Public Service Pension Plan. To confirm which pension plan you are in, check the code on your pay statement i.e. PENC (College Pension Plan) or PENP (Public Service Pension Plan). Alternately, you may contact the BCIT Payroll Department.

3. What can I do to increase my pension?

You may be able to increase your pension benefits by purchasing eligible leaves of absence, past non-contributory service or by transferring service from another eligible pension plan. See the “Near Retirement FAQ” section of each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca or contact BCIT’s Payroll Department.

4. If I’ve contributed to more than one pension plan, how will my pension be paid?

If you’ve been a member of the College, Municipal, Public Service, Teacher’s, ICBC or Worksafe BC Pension Plan, and are now a member of another of the plans on the list, you may be able to combine your service by transferring your previous service into your current plan (or the plan to which you last contributed). See the “Publications”, “Pensionfacts” section under each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca.

5. In the event of my death, who is the beneficiary of my pension?

Your spouse is automatically the beneficiary of your pension unless they consent in writing to you choosing another beneficiary. If you don’t have a spouse and you haven’t named a beneficiary prior to your death, the plan pays death benefits to your estate. For more information, visit the “Retired Members”, “Publications” section under each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca

6. What is the definition of spouse?

Under the Pension Benefits Standards Act, spouse means:

- (a) The person you are legally married to and, for the two-year period immediately before the relevant time (e.g., retirement or death), were not separated from* OR;
- (b) The person of the same or opposite sex, who has lived with you in a marriage-like relationship for the two-year period immediately before the relevant time.

*You are not considered separated if the separation is due to health reasons.

7. How do separation and divorce affect my pension benefits?

If you divorce or separate, you and your spouse must decide if and how your pension will be divided. To see how divorce or separation affects your pension, visit the Publications”, “Pensionfacts” section under each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca

8. What benefits am I entitled to from BCIT upon retirement?

If you are currently receiving BCIT benefits under the Medical Services, Extended Health Care and Dental Plans and are an active member of the College or Public Service Plan, your coverage will be maintained by BCIT for one additional month following your retirement. If you are currently receiving BCIT benefits under the Medical Services, Extended Health Care and Dental Plans but are not currently an active member of the College or Public Service Plan, your benefit coverage will cease the end of the month in which you retire.

9. What benefits am I entitled to from my pension plan upon retirement?

Upon retirement, you are eligible for monthly pension income, plus the option of coverage under the Medical Services Plan, plus Extended Health Care and Dental under Pacific Blue Cross. Premium payments may be subsidized up to 100% by the pension plan depending on which plan you are in and your length of pensionable service. If you are not subsidized up to 100%, the total cost, or the difference in premium costs, will be deducted from your monthly pension cheque. For the most current information, always refer to “Retired Members”, “Publications” under each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca

10. What benefits are available from the Federal Government upon retirement?

Canada Pension Plan (CPP) – you are eligible for a CPP retirement pension if:

- You are at least 65 years of age; OR you are between the ages of 60 and 64 and have substantially or completely stopped working. From 2012 to 2016, the Government of Canada is gradually changing the early pension reduction from 0.5% to 0.6% for each month you receive it before age 65. This means that by 2016, an individual who starts receiving their CPP retirement pension at the age of 60 will receive 36% less than if they had taken it at 65.

- The reduction at age 65 is permanent.

Your CPP does NOT start automatically. You should apply six (6) months before you wish these benefits to commence. To apply, or find information on eligibility and payment information, visit: <http://www.servicecanada.gc.ca/eng/services/pensions/cpp/retirement/age.shtml>

Old Age Security (OAS)

OAS is a monthly benefit available to most Canadians age 65 who meet the Canadian legal status and residence requirements. The age of eligibility for Old Age Security (OAS) pension and the Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) will gradually increase from 65 to 67 over six years, starting in April 2023. The ages of eligibility for the Allowance and the Allowance for the Survivor will also gradually increase from 60 to 62.

As of July 2013, a voluntary deferral of the OAS pension allows you to delay receipt of your OAS pension by up to 60 months after the first date of eligibility in exchange for a higher monthly amount.

An automatic enrollment process will eliminate the need for many seniors to apply for the OAS pension. This change is being phased in gradually starting in April 2013.

For the most current information regarding OAS, visit:
<http://www.servicecanada.gc.ca/eng/services/pensions/oas/index.shtml>

11. What pension options are available to me under the Pension Corporation?

When you apply for your pension, you will receive a “Retirement Selection Statement” that quotes the various pension option combinations and amounts those options will pay each month. You will be given a variety of options to choose from, including spousal benefits if you have a spouse.

Single Life With a 5, 10 or 15 Year Guarantee Period

Under these options, the guarantee period begins the date your pension starts and continues for 5, 10 or 15 years. The pension is payable for as long as you live, and continues to be paid to your beneficiary if you die before the guarantee period expires. Payments to your beneficiary continue for the amount of time left in the guarantee period. If you die and your estate is your beneficiary, the plan will pay the remaining payments in the guarantee period to your estate in a lump sum. If your beneficiary dies before you do, and before the guarantee period ends, you may name another beneficiary. If you don't name another beneficiary before you die, the plan will pay the remaining payments in the guarantee period to your estate in a lump sum. No payments are made to your estate if you die after the guarantee period ends.

Other Guarantees on a Single Life Pension

The final option for a single life pension is a combination of a (single life pension with a 5 year guarantee and a temporary annuity). If you have a spouse, you cannot select a single life option unless your spouse signs a “Spousal Waiver” form. The Pension Benefit Standards Act requires that anyone with a spouse must select at least a 60% joint life option. Therefore, if you have a spouse, you may only select a single life option if your spouse signs a “Spousal Waiver” form.

Joint Life Pension

A joint life pension is paid for the joint life of you and your spouse. In other words, if your spouse lives longer than you do, he or she continues to get a pension, based on the percentage of joint life pension you select at retirement. You can choose a 60% or 100% joint life.

Temporary Annuity

A temporary annuity temporarily supplements your pension and is payable until you reach age 65 or die, whichever comes first. This option may help you meet the initial expenses of retirement; however, it permanently reduces your lifetime pension. When the temporary annuity ends, you receive smaller pension payments than you would have if you had left your basic pension intact.

Bridge Benefit (Offset)

This portion of the pension is payable until you, the member, reach age 65, or die, whichever occurs first. If you retire before age 65 and choose to apply for CPP early, you will still receive the Bridge Benefit plus your reduced pension from CPP.

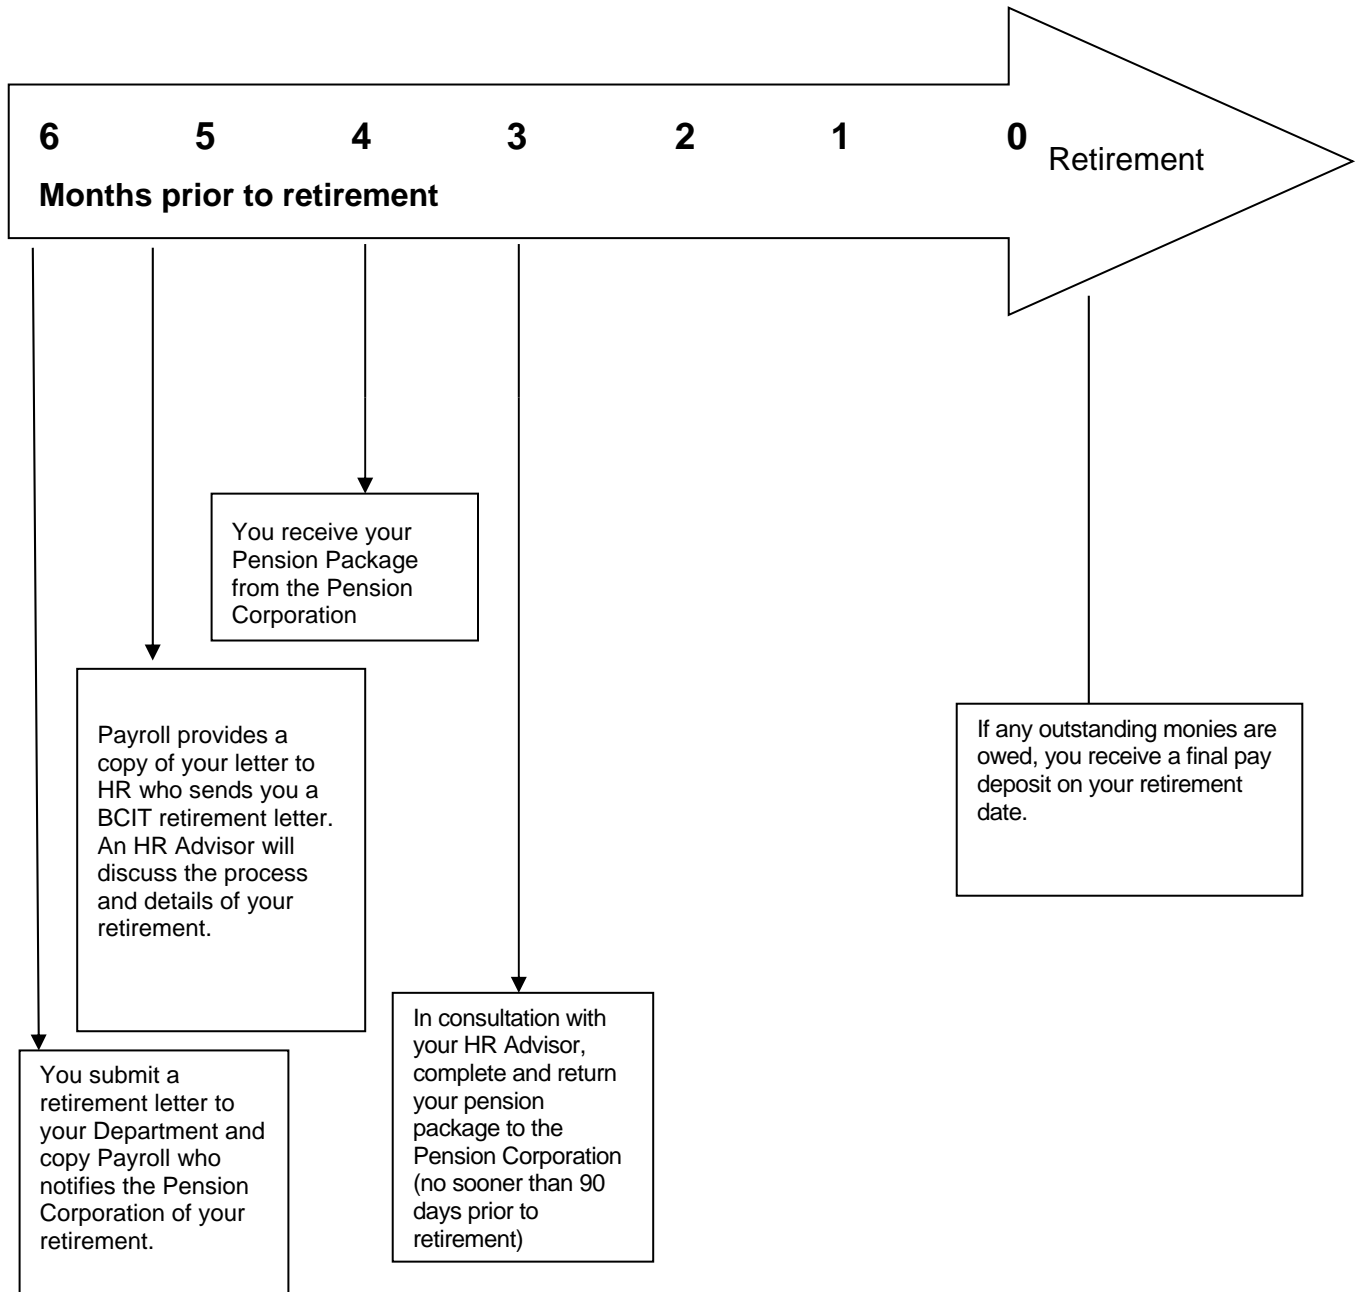

For more information, refer to the Pensionfact sheet titled “Pension Options Available to Retiring Members” under “Publications” in each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca

12. Will my pension be eligible for cost of living adjustments?

A cost-of-living increase of up to 100 per cent of the increase in the Canadian consumer Price Index is applied to pensions in January of each year if there are sufficient funds in the Inflation Adjustment Account. Effective January 1, 2011, cost-of-living increases will be capped at a sustainable level determined during the actuarial valuation process every three years. The member's first increase will be pro-rated based on the number of payments received in the calendar year the pension begins. Although future cost-of-living increases are not guaranteed, once a cost-of-living increase is granted, it becomes part of the guaranteed, lifetime pension.

For more information visit the “Retired Members”, “Information” section under each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca for more information.

13. What steps are included in the retirement process?

*This guideline provides recommended timelines to follow in the retirement process.

14. When will my pension start?

Your retirement date is typically the last day of a month and the effective date of your pension is the first day of the following month.

15. Is my pension taxable?

Yes. Income tax will be deducted from your monthly pension payments based on information provided by you on your Personal Tax Credit Form. The Pension Corporation will send you an income tax form at the end of February each year. Additional tax may be deducted upon written request.

16. How and when will my pension be paid?

Pension payments can be mailed to your home or directly deposited to your bank, at the end of each month, for that month. To ensure you receive your pension payment on time, the Pension Corporation suggests you consider the direct deposit option. More information is available in the "FAQ, After Retirement" section under each plan at www.pensionsbc.ca

17. What documentation will I have to provide when I retire?

Proof of age documentation (copy of driver's license, birth certificate or Passport) must be provided when you return your pension package to the Pension Corporation. In addition, if you choose a pension option that includes a spouse (such as a Joint Life and Last Survivor option), proof of age documentation is also required for your spouse.

If the name on your or your spouse's i.d. is different than the name that you or your spouse use today, you must also provide change of name documentation (for example: marriage certificate). Please note that the Pension Corporation requires documentation for every name change, not just the most recent one.

In addition, you must declare your current marital status on a Spousal Declaration form, regardless of whether you are single, living common-law or married. If you have a spouse, you will be required to select a Joint Life and Last Survivor option that, in the event of your death, provides for at least 60% of your monthly pension to continue to be paid to your spouse as beneficiary unless he/she waives this entitlement by signing the Pension Plan Options form and the Spousal Waiver form, which must be signed and witnessed. These forms will be included in your pension package.

18. Where can I obtain copies of marriage certificates and/or birth certificates?

Copies can be obtained through the Department of Vital Statistics in your birth province (or birth country if born outside Canada) and there is normally a nominal fee charged. The website for the British Columbia Vital Statistics Agency is: www.vs.gov.bc.ca

19. Re-employment of Retired Members

If an employee retires from the (College, Municipal or Public Service) Pension Plan and then returns to work in an employee category under the same plan as they retired from, they continue receiving their pension and do not have an option to re-enrol in or contribute to the same plan. If an employee is receiving a pension from a different pension plan, or is receiving a pension as a survivor of a deceased member, regular enrolment rules apply.

20. What is the “BCIT Retiree’s Association” and how do I join?

The BCIT Retiree’s Association (BCITRA) is an association established for BCIT retirees and their spouses/partners. Membership has a number of benefits and a very low annual membership fee.

For membership benefits, application and details, visit the BCIT Retiree’s Association at <http://www.bcitra.bc.ca/>. Alternately, you may contact them at:
