APA STYLE GUIDE

BCIT Library Services

bcit.ca/library

When writing a research paper, it is important to cite any sources that you have consulted in your research. Acknowledge any ideas, information or arguments of others, whether they are directly quoted, paraphrased or summarized. Citing sources gives credit to authors for the works you used, provides evidence to make your argument strong and enables the reader to check your sources. Failure to do so may be construed as plagiarism. Plagiarism is the presentation of the ideas of others as one's own and is a serious academic offence.

Citation information must appear in two places.

- First, it must appear in the text of your paper at the point where the borrowed fact or idea appears. These are known as in-text citations.
- Secondly, you are required to include a complete list of sources at the end of the paper. These will appear in your reference list.

OVERVIEW OF IN-TEXT CITATIONS

For in-text citations in APA, provide at least the author's name and the year of publication. For direct quotations and some paraphrases, give a page number as well. For online sources without page numbers, indicate the paragraph number. Use the abbreviation para.

Short quotations

Incorporate quotations that are fewer than 40 words in the text of your paper. Enclose the quotation in quotation marks.

Frisch (2008) has stated that "teams should continue to reframe their options in ways that preserve their original intent, be it a higher return on net assets or greater growth" (p. 126).

Long quotations

Quotations that are longer than 40 words should be displayed in a freestanding double-spaced block of text without quotation marks. Start the quotation on a new line, indented five to seven spaces from the left margin.

Frisch (2008) stated the following:

Teams should continue to reframe their options in ways that preserve their original intent, be it a higher return on net assets or greater growth. When they feel the impulse to shoehorn decisions into an either/or framework, they should step back and generate a broader range of options. (p. 126)

Based on the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 7th ed.

Indirect quotations or secondary sources

You should always try to access the original source of quotations. When this is not possible, use “as cited in” to identify the source you accessed that contains the quotation. See example under citing an indirect or secondary source.

Paraphrases

Paraphrasing: putting someone else’s ideas into your own words is an important writing tool. In APA, the in-text citation format is the same as with quotations except that the page number is not required. When paraphrasing, be sure to reword the original as much as you can. Paraphrasing that is too close to the original might be considered plagiarism. Below is an example of an effective and of an ineffective paraphrase.

Original excerpt: When decision failures occur, many executives focus on the issues involved, and they seek to identify the mistaken judgements and flawed assumptions that they made. However, many leaders do not push further to investigate why they made these errors.

Source: Roberto, M. A. [2013]. Why great leaders don’t take yes for an answer: Managing for conflict and consensus [2nd ed.]. FT Press.

Incomplete paraphrase: When decision errors happen, plenty of executives look at the issues, and they try to identify the mistaken judgements and assumptions that they made. However, many do not go deeper to investigate why they made these mistakes (Roberto, 2013).

Note: The above example might be considered plagiarism, as it retains too much of the original’s words and structure.

Complete paraphrase: Roberto (2013) has argued that business leaders frequently avoid analysis of the ultimate causes of bad decision-making, and are instead too often satisfied with an understanding of proximate factors.

OVERVIEW OF REFERENCE LIST

The reference list should be on a separate page at the end of the paper. This sheet will be called References (or Reference if there is only one citation). Do not bold, underline or use quotation marks around the heading, References. APA recommends using either a sans serif font such as 11-point Calibri, 11-point Arial, or 10 point Lucida Sans Unicode, or a serif font such as 12-point Times New Roman or 11-point Georgia. All entries must be double-spaced. The first line of each reference is set flush left and subsequent lines are indented. List references in alphabetical order by the author’s name or by title if there is no author. Italicize book and journal titles. Include all of the information needed to identify and retrieve the source. For the titles of books, articles, and chapters, capitalize only the first letter of the title and the subtitle. Always capitalize proper nouns and journal titles.

A Note on Electronic Sources

For electronic resources, the 7th edition of the APA Publication Manual [2020] suggests using the DOI in reference list citations. When this is not possible, APA suggests writers should add the homepage URL for the journal, or for the eBook publisher.

JOURNAL ARTICLES [treat print or electronic articles in a similar manner]

DOI: Journal articles from the Library's online databases usually list a Digital Object Identifier [DOI]. You should include this information at the end of a citation. If possible, include a DOI even when using a print source. The DOI is usually shown prominently in detailed records.

To format DOIs:

- Present the DOI as a hyperlink (i.e. beginning with "https://"). The link, should be live if the work is to be read online, and it's acceptable to use either the default settings for hyperlinks, or plain text that is not underlined.

Example: <https://doi.org/xxxxx>

Note: When a DOI is long or complex, you may use short DOIs by going to this website: <https://shortdoi.org/>.

No DOI: For articles retrieved from a library database do not include a URL or database name if the work is widely available [example, from Business Source Complete or CBCA]. For work from databases that contain material that is only in that database include the name of the database and URL of the login page [example, from IBISWorld or Passport].

CLASS MATERIALS*Coursepacks and Courseware

Previously published articles and book chapters: To cite sources presented in a coursepack or courseware (e.g., Learning Hub), citation would be the same as if you found them yourself. For example, if your Learning Hub course has a link to a published journal article from a BCIT Library database, you would use the appropriate citation style described in the electronic database examples.

Original material: If you are citing original (i.e., unpublished) material presented in a coursepack or on a Learning Hub course site, you should handle it as if it were an anthology compiled by your instructor and published by BCIT.

The information on the cover or title page indicates the title of the compilation — probably the course name and number, as in the examples below.

Unpublished material in a coursepack / courseware; single author
